- Processed real-time data from Arduino-based systems

ACADEMIC PROJECT

Green Traffic Based On Croud- This is Python-based project focuses on developing a smart traffic management system that automatically controls traffic signals based on crowd or vehicle density at road intersections. The system analyzes real-time traffic data collected from cameras or sensors to detect congestion levels on each road. Using Python libraries for data processing and decision-making, the signal turns green for the lane with higher traffic density, reducing waiting time and traffic congestion
